Expand your data's reach

Enjoy telephony without back doors

Modern telephone systems are faster, more reliable and highly affordable, because they are digital. This means there are many things motivated criminals can do to infiltrate, eavesdrop, reroute and disable calls. Don't let your telephony system become a dark horse that can harm your company. Use the best in telephone technology security, such as Mitel Clearspan, and get the best in communications without unwanted ears listening in.

Lock down your network

The network is where all your data moves, both inside and outside your company. This makes it the main target of criminals and they will go to great lengths to compromise this business nerve centre. Secure your networks by using smart, strategic and affordable measures, such as secure firmware installed on the network devices themselves.

From the receptionist to sales to contractors and visitors, there are many moving pieces in a company and all of them require some level of access to your systems. Use the latest in access control technologies to ensure only the right people log in at the right place and time.

Full access control

Your business thrives on documents: deals, brochures, case studies, customer details, reports and many more pieces of information. Ensure your people can access company knowledge without accidentally sharing it with the wrong people or applications.

Secure your documents

Give access to the right applications
